

CLAIM: The initiation and duration of the couples' conversation about love is unplanned and unexpected.

Supporting Evidence	Supporting Evidence	Supporting Evidence
The gin and the tonic water kept going around, and we somehow got on the subject of love.	"How'd we get started on this subject, anyway?" Terri said.	...and I thought that was the last of it.
(Reference: page 170)	(Reference: page 171)	(Reference: page 171)

CLAIM: Carver associates Ed with violent actions and imagery.

Supporting Evidence	Supporting Evidence	Supporting Evidence
Then Terri said, "He beat me up one night. He dragged me around the living room by my ankles."	"But his gums went crazy from it. I mean they pulled away from his teeth. After that, his teeth stood out like fangs."	"He used to call my service at all hours and say he needed to talk to the doctor, and when I'd return the call, he'd say, 'Son of a bitch, your days are numbered.'"
(Reference: page 170)	(Reference: page 172)	(Reference: Page 173)