Read Chapter 12: "There are Three." Complete Learning from Frightful's Perspective: Chapter 12. 	 For this assessment, smaller groups of students are in the inner circle at any given time, as their classmates observe. The interactive roles of both the inner and outer circle participants are important in students' ability to achieve goals and experience success with this assessment. After the first 4 minutes of each Fishbowl discussion, pause for 1 minute so the outer circle partners can share observations, feedback, and goals with their inner circle partners. After the next 4 minutes of the Fishbowl discussion, allow 1 minute for the outer circle partners to give feedback to give closure on the inner circle participant's contribution to the discussion. In between each round, allow 2 minutes for inner circle students and outer circle students to exchange places. Keep students on their toes! In order for outer circle students not to know which discussion group will go next, consider selecting the students who were counted off as number 3 to be the second inner circle group. As inner circle students are determined, add those names to the Fishbowl Assessments. Review: Fishbowl Discussion protocol (Appendix). Post: Learning targets.

Opening	Meeting Students' Needs
 A. Unpacking Learning Targets (2 minutes) * "I can interpret information about DDT presented by my peers orally and visually." * "I can explain how new information contributes to my understanding of DDT." * "I can use my knowledge of DDT to advocate persuasively for one side or another." Ask students to stand in a circle as they unpack the learning targets. Use a document camera to display the learning targets. Read aloud while students quietly read along. Make sure students have their text, Frightful's Mountain. Remind students that they have been on a journey to learn about DDT and to use that knowledge to contemplate if the benefits of DDT outweigh the harmful consequences. Invite students to think about Rachel Carson's quote: "In nature nothing exists alone." Encourage students to consider living things such as peregrine falcons, children battling malaria, people struggling with poverty, insects, farmers. As all living things in the world move forward, it is important to learn, discuss, and question. 	 Some students may benefit from different assessment opportunities to share the claims and evidence they have documented on their Cascading Consequences charts. When Fishbowl discussion is required, consider partnering ELL students who speak the same home language. This allows students to have more meaningful discussions and clarify points in their native language.

Opening (continued)	Meeting Students' Needs
B. Preparing for the Assessment: Select Inner and Outer Circle Students for Round 1 (2 minutes)
• While students are standing in the circle, ask them to count off as 1's, 2's and 3's. Inform 1's that they will be in the inner circle; 2's and 3's will be the outer circle for the first Fishbowl discussion.
• Direct 1's to take a seat in the inner circle. Ask 2's and 3's to sit in the outer circle in the order of 2, 3, 2, 3 When the outer circle students are seated, ask them to move two seats to the left or the right. Explain that each inner circle student will be partnered with both a 2 and a 3 outer circle student.
• Explain that there will be three Fishbowl discussions. All students will have the opportunity to discuss in the inner circle. All students will also participate in the outer circle and have the opportunity to listen, learn, and provide feedback to their inner circle partners.
• Tell students that each Fishbowl discussion will take 10 minutes. Explain the discussion will pause midway so outer circle partners can provide feedback to their inner circle partner for 1 minute. That feedback will include recognition of something that is being done well and steps to take in the next part of the discussion. When the discussion in finished, outer circle partners will share their final feedback that includes both successes and steps for future discussions.
• Tell students the next inner circle group will be selected at the end of the first round of the Fishbowl discussion.

End of Unit Assessment:

Work Time	Meeting Students' Needs
A. End of Unit 1 Assessment: Fishbowl Discussion: Do the Benefits of DDT Outweigh the Consequences? (36 minutes: 10 minutes for each inner-circle discussion, 2 minutes for each transition)
• Distribute two copies of the Fishbowl Discussion Partner Scoring Log to each student.
• Explain that feedback and reflection will take place twice. The first time will be midway through the Fishbowl discussion; the second time will be at the end of the Fishbowl discussion. Outer circle partners will share their observations.
• Ask the outer circle students to put their names and their inner circle partner's name on the scoring log. Explain that all of the completed Fishbowl Discussion Partner Scoring Logs will be collected at the end of the Fishbowl discussion.
• Remind students that the guided question they will be discussing is:
* "Do the benefits of DDT outweigh the harmful consequences?"
 Refer to the End of Unit 1 Assessment—Fishbowl Discussion: DDT: Do the Benefits Outweigh the Consequences?
• Invite students to begin.
• See Teaching Notes for guidance regarding pacing. After 4 minutes, pause for feedback. After 10 minutes, stop, and commend students for their participation in the Fishbowl discussion. Share that their interaction as speakers and listeners is an important contribution to learning, interpreting, and advocating with informed thoughts.
• Remind students it is valuable to reflect on their role in the discussion. Tell students that in Unit 2, they will have another opportunity to communicate their knowledge and opinions.

End of Unit Assessment:

Closing and Assessment	Meeting Students' Needs
A Exit Ticket: Two Stars and One Step (5 minutes)
